From the Rabbi...

When Adar Comes In Our Joy Increases!

Happy Adar! In fact this year our joy is doubled because this year is a leap year in the Jewish calendar. We find ourselves towards the end of Adar Aleph on our way to Adar Bet. And what is it that is causing all of this joy? The joy is because we will soon celebrate the holiday of Purim.

One of the big themes of the holiday relates to our survival against historic enemies that seek our destruction. Averting Haman's evil decree is a cause for celebration as the Megillah tells us "The Jews had light and joy" at that time. It's kind of like that old joke that all Jewish holidays are about the same thing. They tried to kill us, we won, let's eat! There is some truth in that but I think the joy of Adar and Purim reaches deeper.

An interesting aspect of the Book of Esther is that God is conspicuously absent. And when I say absent, I mean nowhere. God's name is not mentioned and there is narry even a passing reference to God at all. Many commentators speak about God's hiddenness in the Megillah. Some connect the name Esther to the Hebrew word seter, meaning hidden or secret.

I am often struck by this phenomenon considering that usually our holidays celebrate God being involved in our history in some way. Pesach contains God's miracles of the plagues and the splitting of the sea. Shavuot we receive the Torah. Sukkot is the time when we invite God's presence into our sukkot. I could go on. But God seems to be nowhere in Purim.

What do we make of this?

One approach is to continue the idea that God is not really absent but simply hiding. If we read the story with the right lenses we might be able to see God's hand at work. A fine explanation but it leaves me wanting.

God's absence, while jarring perhaps and uncomfortable, promotes human agency in the story. Had God been there to swoop in with a miracle, what need would we have for Mordechai and Esther? Instead, the Megillah is teaching us that even though God might be distant all is not lost. We can be masters of our own destiny.

Indeed, as a Jewish people we are at such a moment. Evil forces seek our harm and destruction, and it is hard to see God's involvement. Yet I have confidence in the unbelievable resilience of our people. Generation after generation, and all around the world, Jews have not waited on miracles. Rather we took our fate in hand and survived and in some cases thrived.

This month of happiness and our upcoming celebration of Purim underline our great capacity to endure and our never ending commitment to our people. This is truly a cause for happiness.

It has been a wonderful first month for me at Sha'arey Shalom. You have welcomed me into your community with open arms giving me a sense of what I came to learn in the interview process. That TSS is a proud, warm, and fortunate kehillah kedosha - sacred community.

I've had the chance to meet some of you already and am eager to meet the rest of you. To make this easier for you I have designated some time on my calendar for 30 minute meetings with you. The goal is simply to begin our relationship and start to get to know each other.

Please click this link and you can select a time that is convenient to you. We will meet at TSS 871 Mountain Ave. of course I will have coffee and maybe a piece of cake. Looking forward to getting some one on one time with you.

Rav Uri

Cantor's Corner...

Notes From the Cantor

It is that time of year when Purim is coming upon us and we are putting together a zany, fun, stupendous, wacky, glorious, evening with Spiel, Megillah, and merrymaking on the evening of March 23rd.

Speaking of Megillat Esther, there is a musical tradition of chanting the Megillah to a special trope, unique to this one holiday, but also with musical “detours” which are thematic allusions to other days on the Jewish calendar that happen to be a lot heavier than the festivities, fun, and merry-making which we all associate with Purim. The book of Esther is not all whimsy. We make whimsy out of it. However, the story is replete with adult themes and dire moments of danger for the Jewish people. God’s name is not mentioned even once in the book though God arguably plays a hand in the way everything unfolds. Another way of reading the Hebrew letters in the name, “Esther” changing only the Hebrew vowels is “a-sa-ter” meaning “I will hide.”

Chapter 1 of the Megillah makes an allusion to “different vessels” into which the wine was poured as part of King A-hash-vey-rosh’s drunken feast. The implication is that the vessels which somehow found their way into the King’s possession were originally taken from the Beit HaMikdash, the destroyed Holy Temple in Jerusalem in an event mourned by our people during the observance of Tisha B’Av when we chant from the book of Eicha/Lamentations. It is at this moment in the book of Esther, that a Cantor is taught, as sort of a musical footnote, to change the chanting momentarily to the trope of Eicha/Lamentations. This theme recurs during allusions to the exile of Mordecai’s lineage, as well as the mournful sackcloth which Mordecai dons in public to get Esther’s attention, and other moments in the story when our people are in danger.

Then there is also a special High Holy Days moment in the Megillah. At a moment in the story, the amoral earthly King A-hash-vey-rosh has trouble sleeping and wakes up to check his Book of Records only to discover that an attempt on his life was foiled by Mordecai the Jew. The irony and remarkable symbolism of this part of the story was not lost on our ancient ancestors. A King opens a Book, in mimicry of the all-benevolent Heavenly Ruler, while the fate of the Jewish People hangs in the balance. This particular instance of the word “Melekh” (“King”) is therefore set to the descending minor arpeggio that is notably heard during Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

And so, on March 23rd, we will assemble as a Congregation for an evening of fun, farce, humor, song, jubilation, and merrymaking for all, in celebration of a tale that has a happy ending. In a story that does not mention God, set in a shallow kingdom in exile, ruled by a hedonistic dunce making arbitrary laws, the Jewish People still come out on top.

Cantor Jason Rosenman

From the President...

In my Rosh Hashana message, first day, I spoke of "The Little Congregation that Can", and I asked for your assistance in helping maintain our Temple Family and to keep us vibrant. I am thrilled by your response and pleased to say "The Little Congregation That Can" has been very busy. Our activities committee has planned, organized, and presented a Chanukah Brunch with a Rabbi Emeritus Lecture, a trip to the Cranford Theatre followed by dinner at a local restaurant, and is busy organizing a Book Club, and planning a membership Appreciation Program to be presented in May. Our Sisterhood has completed a successful fund raiser for Magen David Adom, and has planned a program for March featuring a Medium. Brotherhood is in the process of planning its famous Movie Night for the evening of 04/27/2024. Recently, the Rabbi & Cantor working with the Ritual Chair have scheduled courses to be led by Rabbi & Cantor. A weekly course with the Rabbi entitled Partners in Holiness (started Feb. 14), and a Coffee & Nosh with the Rabbi one Sunday per month (starting March 3); the Cantor has developed a course entitled Israeli Folk, Popular, and Art Song, which began on February 29. These programs are in addition to the weekly Prophet/Haftarah Class, and the Saturday morning Study Minyan. Please check your email the "Events For The Week" for dates and times of these programs.

The Nominating Committee has been formed and is about to begin its work developing a slate of officers and trustees for your consideration at our Annual Congregational Meeting. The members of the committee are: Brad Sklar (Chair), Richard Brown, Janet Maslow, Sharon Moesch, and John Salerno.

The Finance Committee has been formed and has begun its work in developing the Temple's Budget for the 2024-25 Fiscal Year. The members of the committee are: Marc Bain, Pam Bain, Edie Ben Israel, Mickey Herzlinger, Larry Lerner, Brad Sklar (Chair).

I am pleased to tell you that our Ner Tamid was installed on February 27, and its presence was felt at Shabbat Services on March 1.

Update from Israel: our granddaughter Adira recently completed her training and has been certified as an Emergency Medical Responder (EMR) by Magen David Adom, and has begun serving as a volunteer EMR in Holon, Israel. Adira's initial reports indicate that she is enjoying her volunteer service and has been busy responding to the typical emergency medical needs of the members of the community she serves. The MDA is highly dependent upon donations from the diaspora. Proudly, TSS has been a contributor to Magen David Adom through the recent funding drive completed by our Sisterhood.

Israeli Folk, Popular, and Art Song

An Adult Ed Class by
Cantor Jason Rosenman

Thursday's at 7:00 pm

In Person and on Zoom

This class will explore the songs that have been sung in Israel over the past 75 years in both times of joy and times of sadness. It will also include the history behind the words and how some songs have the words or melody varied over time as impacted by historical events. It will include Israeli music in the folk, art, and popular genres.

“Shiva Baby”

While at a Jewish funeral service with her parents, a college student has an awkward encounter with her sugar daddy and her ex-girlfriend.) This is a bit edgier than we are accustomed to but it should make for lively discussion after the movie.

This is during Passover, 4 nights after the second seder. Relax and let off some steam after your own family gatherings.

We will provide Kosher for Passover snacks and munchies, and feel free to bring your own creations/holiday leftovers.

Space is limited,

PLEASE THIS NIGHT IS ONLY FOR ACTUAL TEMPLE MEMBERS.

While sponsored by Brotherhood, all Temple members are invited at no charge. Event will be at the Temple, 871 Mountain Avenue.

Designated Funds Form

Through the centuries, Jews have maintained the custom of commemorating occasions of joy and sorrow by making special contributions to their temples. Contributions may be made announcing joyous events, in honor of special occasions, in memory of the departed, or as an expression of sympathy or gratitude. Temple Sha'arey Shalom has established several funds for this purpose. As many congregants may be unaware of the various funds, we have listed them for your guidance.

Payments can be made by Check (made payable to "Temple Sha'arey Shalom" not the individual fund name), by Zelle to: scroll@shaarey.org, and also by cash, and mailed to the Temple office.
